Poetry.

The Woman Question.

In the North Texan, published in Paris Texas, some young Southern woman propounds to popular intelligence this poetical conundrum:

So uselessly, aimlessly drifting through life,
Pray what was I born for?—"For somebodiy's wife,"
I'm told by my mother, though, that being true,
My "Somebody" keeps himself strangely from view.
And if naught but marriage will settle my fate,
I believe I shall die in an unsettled state.
For though I'm not ugly—pray, what woman is?
You might easily find a more beautiful phiz;
And then, as for temper and manners, 'tis plain
He who seeks for perfection will seek her in vain,
Nay, in spite of these drawbacks, my heart is perverse.
And I should not feel grateful "for better or worse"
To take the first booby that graciously came
And offered those treasures, his home and his name.
I think then my chances of marriage are small,
But why should I think of such chances at all?
My brothers are, all of them younger than I,
Yet they thrive in the world, and why not let "me" try?
I know that in business I am not an adept,
Because from such matters most strictly I'm kept.
But—this is the question that puzzles my mind—
Why am I not trained up to work of some kind,
Instead of thus waiting the best of my life
To be an apocryphal "Somebody's Wife?"

A DETECTIVE'S STORY.

Chapter 1.

I have worked up many hard cases and have cornered many notorious criminals, but never, before or since, have I been engaged in a case so complicated or one so hard to clear up as the Stuart-Firstone murder case. You know that the Stuarts were very wealthy and the old man had only two sons, Cecil and Gilbert; outlandish names they were, to be sure, but they were very proud of them, at least the younger one. As I said, he had two to bother him, and to these of course, he gave the bulk of his property. Cecil was a cripple, the result of being dropped by a careless nurse in his infancy.

Gilbert, the younger of the two was early known to all the sports as a jolly good fellow, partly because he would always stand treat, and he would play billiards and such games; and yet he was never known to win them when playing for a wager. In this manner he sustained his reputation of being a free and easy fellow. But in the mean time his property had been steadily decreasing, until at last his share—which in the first place would have been more than enough for men like you and me—dwindled down to an insignficant sum, and he had to look in some other direction for money to pay his gaming debts. He had often applied to his brother for aid and had often attained it, together with good advice, which he promised to heed, but never did.

Cecil was always very studious and had surrounded himself with all the old fashioned books that he could hear of or obtain. And on account of his lameness this kind of company had a charm for him that we in good health would not feel.

Cecil was always lenient toward his erring brother, but at last hearing from every source of his scrapes, he was compelled, by a sense of duty, to resolve to refuse his application for aid. And it was not long before he had to test his resolutions, for Gilbert, after an "all night" of it in a gambling saloon, came to him and begged for more money. Cecil reasoned with him, and with tears in his eyes begged that he would quit his wild habits. But all was of no avail, and he was compelled, much against his brotherly feelings, to refuse him the aid he sought. At this Gilbert flew into a frenzy of rage and left the house swearing that he would get the money in some manner.

As he was walking homeward feeling anything but pleasant, he saw his deadliest enemy riding with a young lady, to whom he had been paying attention for some time, but who now gave him the "cut direct." Maddened at this he rushed into a saloon near by, and calling for whiskey he swallowed a glassful in an instant, then went home and called his bosom friend and counsellor to him.

Albert Festone, the friend, was a brokendown gambler, a man who had spent a fortune on the turf, and was now nominally acting as jockey for Gilbert Stuart, but was in reality his confederate in schemes of robbery, and, as the sequal will show of murder. These two friends were closeted together for a long while, and time showed the result of their conference, though I would not spoil my story by revealing too soon their nefarious designs.

Of course you remember the excitement in the up-town circles when the news of Cecil Stuart's murder was circulated, and the astonishment of every one when it was known that his body had been found in the cellar of Roger Lyon's brown-stone palace. Astonishment was increased manifold by the intelligence that Roger Lyon was arrested and charged with the crime of murder.

Although but few were immediately acquainted with Cecil Stuart, and a scarcely larger circle hardly knew him as a very eccentric man, yet the crime being committed at the very door of their mansion made it seem the most startliug one in the records of our city; and as there were many influential personages who loved Roger Lyon better than all their friends beside, and many a poor washerwoman who blessed the day that he saved her bit of ground from the auctioneer's hammer, to have him the peoples favorite charged with such a deed, seemed to have been an outrage upon all classes of our citizens.

I well remember when Lansing, Lyon's lawyer, called upon me and begged me to try my best to clear up the mystery. At this time I had been on the detective force for nearly four years, and of course knew the ropes pretty well. But for a month I confess that at times I was nearly baffled.

But I will come directly to my story. As a first step I went to the cellar where the body was found, and as I had ordered it to be left there after the inquest till I could examine everything myself, it still remained there. Being somewhat of a doctor, I naturally examined the wounds, and was satisfied that they would not cause instant death. But I did not rely on my own medical skill in this, but sent for a physician. He came—a sharp fellow by the name of Denning—and probed the wounds. One of the wounds went close to the heart, but the other two were in the lungs, evidently intended to cause hemorrhage, which had followed' but not sufficent to cause death immediately.

The doctor soon finished his work, and giving me a look that interpreted instantly, went out, taking Lansing with him, to whom he communicated the result of his examination. When they had gone I walked over to the wall and picked up the knife. As I stooped over to do this, I saw some marks on the wall that appeared to have been made by a sharp instrument of some kind. While I was examining these, Gilbert Stuart and Albert Firstone entered. I was about to call their attention to the marks when a sudden thought caused me to close my mouth upon the words that were on my tongue's end.

As soon as they were gone, I again examined the marks, and I found they were a combination of letters and figures arranged like this:

S—1225—D

I copied them upon paper, and then, taking the knife with me, went to my office down town, to study out, if possible, the cypher I had discovered. I had no doubt but it was made by Cecil, probably after he had been stabbed; and I was convinced that the cause of its being in cipher was that no one would be apt to notice it enough to obliterate it. But by what means could I obtain a key was the puzzle.

Acting according to a suggestion of Lansing, I went to the public library, and for a week I rumaged its shelves for any work that mentioned cipher writing. I continued bringing home books until my den looked more like a reading room than a detective's office, while in their midst sat Lancing, searching every page, and occasionally jotting down something in a book by his side.

One day I entered with arms full of books, and I noticed a look akin to triumph on his face as his pencil flew over the paper. In answer to my inquiry he handed me a slip of paper upon which he had copied a table giving the relative number of each letter that is used in common English words. I looked it over and waited for him to speak. In a moment he looked up and said:

"You see that table gives 'e' the prominence over all others; call 'e' one. Then see 't' is second best; call 't' two, Then run your eyes up to the fifth in importance, and we have 'd' and 'l.' Take last number five, and the figures, with the addition of the two letters that were expressed, read, 'settl'd.' So you see I have translated the cipher in oneway."

I admitted that it was a very ingenious translation, and was very much encouraged by it, although the word "settled" might not have any special relation to the case in hand. But I did not doubt that it was nearer the true rendering than any we had reached yet, and it convinced me that the figures were to be changed, in some way, to letters, before the cryptogram could be entirely solved,

About a week after his, Lancing was called out of the city by the sickness of his mother. As I parted with him at the depot, I told him to keep up his courage and to write out his defense, while I woulk attend to the remainder.

During all this time the opposing counsel were striving in every possible manner to make an adamantine chain of evidence that should immediately condemn the prisoner beyond any shadow of doubt.

Chapter 2.

In this way nearly three weeks had passed since the murder, when I received a telegram from Lansing, informing me of his return to the city. All this time I had been shut up in my office working, it must be confessed, with little hope of success

The day that I expected Lansing's return I went to the place where the body had been found, and examined carefully the marks on the wall, but I could fine none other than the ones I had seen before, so I concluded that those were the only ones. As I stood looking at them, however, I saw what seemed to be a piece of stone lying on the floor of the cellar. As detectives see a clue in everything, I picked it up and found, to my suprise, that it was a piece of putty. As soon as I discovered this I searched the whole wall to find where the piece came from, and at last I discovered that some marks near the others were filled with putty. I scraped the putty away and the whole cryptogram appeared as foollows:

A First one."

(The letters and figures in italics had been concealed by putty.)

I took another copy and went back to my retreat, leaving orders for no one to be admitted to the cellar.

Here, now, was another mystery; and from the revelation which I had just received, I was astonished into the belief that Albert Firstone had something to do with the crime. But yet the cipher was still a mystery.

While I was studying these new developments Lansing came in. I grasped his hand with a pressure that made him wince, as I showed him the other letters I had found. He looked at them a moment, and then, springing from his chair, fairly shouted:

"Firstone is the murderer, and his name is the key to the cipher!"

And he showed me that the word "Firstone in my copy was separated into two words, and that the line read: "A first one." By this key the figures read, "abbe," and the cipher, with tha addition of the part deciphered, read:

"Stabbed
by
A. Firstone."

We did not either of us shout "eureka!" or anything else. But I looked at Lansing, who was trembling like a leaf, and said, "You ought to have been a detective."

Having written out the cipher according to his translation, and being convinced that I had been outwitted, or something of that sort, by a lawyer, I leaned back in my chair, and I can't tell why, but I burst out in a hearty laugh in which Lansing soon joined.

After my risible powers were exhausted, I rang the bell for the errand boy, and sent a not like this to Denning:

"Come up to my den this forenoon, and bring some handy instrument for the detection of foreign substances, such as pieces of stone in blood."

After sending this I prevailed upon Lansing to go with me to luncheon. In an hour we returned, and found Denning, with a large microscope and several vials. I immediately went to my desk, took out Roger Lyon's knife, and handed it to him, asking him to see if there were any pieces of stone in the blood stains which still showed on the knife. He knew my meaning in an instant. And taking a vial he carefully raised a portion of the stains with its contents, letting the liquid run upon a glass slide, which he had placed in the sun's rays. Impatiently he watched and waited for the evaporation of the liquid. It was soon all gone, when he placed the slide in the microscope and turned the powerful sun glass upon it. On looking in the lens, minute particles of stone, some stained with blood, were plainly visible, thus proving that the knife had been used to cut the stone, of the cellar after the blood had stained it.

"This is the result you wanted to reach; is it not?" asked Denning, as he looked me in the face.

"Yes," I answered.

Then, taking a piece of paper, I wrote for a moment, and then handed him what I had written, with a request that he would sign it, which he did. It was an affidavit certifing that, according to the best medical knowledge the deceased must have lived some time after the fatal blow was received; and that, from minute particles of stone which adhered to the blade, it must have been used by some one, probably the deceased, to cut stone with after the blood stains were on it.

Here, then, was the evidence needed to prove the innocence of the prisoner. I could not resist the temptation to reveal it to Dr. Denning, and a happier trio could hardly be found than were assembled in that little down town office.

The trial was to commence in about a week, and of course we were impatient for the time to pass.

At last the day arrived. The court room was crowded, and many of the detective force were present. After some other business, our case was called up.

The Judgas asked—

"Guilty, or not guilty?"

Lancing, in behalf of the prisoner, broke the silence with the words—

"Not guilty," and added, "I would accuse Albert Firstone of the crime charged upon my client."

I sat next to the criminal when the announcement was made, and as the eyes of the court were turned upon him his self possession left him. And when Lancing asked that he be taken into custody, the poor fellow fell over in a fit and was taken out by a policeman.

THE RAILROAD ENTERPRIZE.

The managers of the "Atlantic Coast Railway Company" claim that they hold out no false inducements, and certainly they do not make any foolish offers. They say that it is not to their interest to build a road through a country that is hostile to it, or among a people who manifest no interest in the enterprize. As the country through which it passes will be so largely benefitted they ask and expect each county to subscribe enough in local subscriptions and county bonds to grade the road through its territory. They do not ask this as a donation or a gift, but are willing to issue stock for it. Nor do they ask that payment be made before the work is begun, or faster than the work progresses. They promise to expend the amount subscribed in each county on the work of the road within the borders of the same. Thus the money subscribed will not be taken out of the county but will be expended in adding to its material wealth. This is all fair and it ought to be satisfactory.

It is estimated that the grading and cross tieing of the road will be about one-fifth of the cost. When the local subscriptions along the line cover this the work will be begun and the other four-fifths of the money will be advanced by the Company. They think it not demanding too much to ask the people along the line to subscribe one-fifth of the expense and thus become interested to that amount in the ownership of the stock.

Now is the time to act. If we want a railroad the way is now open for us to get it. Along the line of the route, especially in the towns and through large bodies of land, the local cash and land subscriptions should be liberal. In addition to this each county through which it passes should at once proceed to take the proper steps toward subscribing to the stock, issuing bonds for the same. They will be justified in this because it will be aiding that which will bring population, developing and adding to the wealth and advancing the public good as no other agency can.

As we stated in our last issue the local cash subscription in Elizabeth City amounts to Twenty Thousand Dollars. The land subscriptions along the line in Pasquotank County will reach near Ten Thousand Acres. The Commissioners of the County will, at an early day, submit the question of issuing County bonds for railroad stock to a vote of the people. That it will be favorably voted on we have not the least doubt.

Now let the other Counties along the line act, and do so at once. There should be no needless delay. It is important for every interest to know as early as possible what to rely on.

——From a letter just received in this City from the Secretary of the Company; dated New York, May 31st. we learn that the Contractors are ready to commence work on ten days notice.

ENCOURAGING SIGNS FOR THE FUTURE.

The sure sign of regeneration in the South is the increasing activity of the people. There is something contagious and vitalizing in free thought, that is sure to display itself in the lives and habits of a people.

Experience has shown that the very best and quickest way to develop a country, and thoroughly arouse a people to the highest and best form of action, is to throw them on their own resources, and "let them alone." If there is any thing noble in them it will soon assert its supremacy. This has been the result in the South. The old dependence on the system of forced labor having been swept away, the people were thrown upon their own resources. Some, it is true, were discouraged, and sank into hopeless melancholy and despair under their misfortunes; but the great mass of the people rose equal to the occasion, and, although it was a fierce ordeal, they nevertheless learned the lessons which adversity taught them, ceased to fight against manifest destiny, went to work with a will, and are now on the high road to prosperity, wealth and power.

The hardest part of the new order of things was, perhaps, for the young men to change their habits. Not all, of course, but many having been brought up in idleness, could not at once make up their minds to give their minds and their time and energies to honorable and profitable business pursuits. In the cities they gathered in club rooms, in country towns they hung around corner groceries and taverns, idled away their time, drank miserable whisky and a great deal of it, inflamed their angry passions against the party which had brought such unwelcome changes in the South, and thus by degrees educated and prepared themselves for deeds of violence.

But most of this is passed away with the "things before the flood." Necessity is the mother of labor as well as of invention; and every hour of honest toil is laden with blessings to the toiler. Necessity drove multitudes of the young men of this State to the plow, the workshop, the office, the store, and yet, while plying the scourge of want, it scattered benedictions on every side.

An hundred years would not have sufficed to give energy, enterprise and thrift to the South under the changed order of things, but for that poverty which compelled habits of industry. But habits of industry once acquired, the minds of the young men of the State once stimulated to grasp great things and undertake great enterprises, we are then a rich and strong people—already rich in the possession of such citizens, and in the sure results of their mental and business activities.

The projects which are on foot to-day for the development of our resources, the introduction of manufactures, the advancement of the commonwealth to the front rank of the States are all in the hands of young men; men who have not yet passed their fortieth birthday. The exceptions to this rule are rare. And this is one of the promising signs of the times.

NARROW GUAGE RAILWAYS NO. 2.

In our article on this subject last week we took the ground that for the present the narrow guage is the system for the South. There are several reasons why this is so. At this time there is scarcely a State South of the Potomac financially able to build a broad guage road. The narrow guage is within their means. The broad guage are too expensive. They are necessarily compelled to charge high rates—higher than the people are able to pay. Among the circumstances conducive to the economical working, as well as the original comparatively cheap cost of the narrow guage system, is the reduced wear and tear in consequence of the use of light machinery and rolling stock. All the parts of narrow guage machinery and rolling stock being relatively stronger than the larger kinds, while the shock to which they are exposed are much lighter, both cars and locomotives will run with much fewer repairs than has been generally estimated. The item of wear and tear is a very serious one, and the amount of it may not be wondered at when the prodigious weight of the broad guage rolling stock going at the rate of twenty-five or thirty miles an hour is taken into consideration, and it must be remembered that no greater strength can be imparted to the material itself used in the broad guage than that attainable in the narrow.

In point of cost $15,000 per mile has been estimated as the difference in favor of the narrow guage. A writer on this subject asks: "Supposing this sum of money to remain uninvested, what a difference would there at once be in the amount of returns required to make the line a paying speculation to the investors and by how much the rates of transportation might be lightened?" Taken altogether, the advantages seem to be clearly on the side of the narrow guage.

The latest in edmond duel seems likely to give the parties—all save he who died—serious concern. Virginia regards "the code" as barbarous, and has enactments against it, and the survivors in the late unpleasantness are held to answer for the killing of Mr. MORDICAI. About half a century ago, the survivor in a fatal duel, though an officer of high rank was convicted and hanged for murder. Thereupon duelling became unpopular in England as a means of settling personal difficulties. A few such examples in Virginia and other Southern States would be likely to produce a world of good.

The news from France which we publish this week, is of the highest importance. France seems to be tending again towards monarchy. The defeat of President THIERS in the assembly, followed by his resignation and the election in his place of Marshal MACMAHON, a royalist and Bonapartist, indicate a change of government, which, however, may be preceded by a bloody revolution. The first action of the assembly and of the President, following the change, will be looked for with the deepest interest.

A certain writer suggests drowning as a substitute for hanging. That this method has an extraordinary precedent must be admitted. According to the Bible it was tried on an extensive scale in the days of Noah. So far as the drowned were concerned, it was found successful. But how as to its effect upon those who survived? If capital punishment is to be continued there would seem to be a manifest propriety in sending those who are to cross "the dark river" by the water route.

TELEGRAPH FROM NORFOLK, PORTSMOUTH TO ELIZABETH CITY, N. C.—Such a line would be a great benefit to Eastern North Carolina, and we think would pay handsome dividends. We know one gentleman from Norfolk county who will furnish all the polls required, and subscribe their worth in stock. Will not our Elizabeth City friends furnish the wire and put the ball in motion?—Norfolk Journal.

Help us build the railroad and we will help build the telegraph.

The news from all parts of the State is encouraging. The tone of all our exchanges is bright and cheerful and the indications give cheerful promise of a gaining prosperity. Immigration from the North—men with capital and enterprize are locating in different portions of the State and these are adding to the business and wealth around them.

Various portions of the Northwestern States have recently been visited with most destructive tornadoes, whirlwinds, rain and hailstorms, destroying a large amount of property and many lives. Farm-houses, school-houses, churches, fences, &c., were hurled into the air like chaff.

New Books, Periodicals, &c.

A SCHOOL HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES. From the Discovery of America in the year 1870. By DAVID B. SCOTT. Illustrated with Maps and Engravings: New York: Harper and Brothers, Publishers, 1872.

This work is writtten in a style adapting it to the use of schools. It has none of that sectional spirit that disfigures the greater number of text-books of this class. Indeed, in that part of the work devoted to an account of the late Civil War in our country, no one would be able to determine to which section of the Union the author belongs. The work breathes a laudable spirit of patriotism; but it is not the patriotism of a section but one embracing the whole country. A clear and accurate narrative of events, a judicious selection of illustrative topics, a just view of causes and consequences, and good judgment in respect to the relative space afforded to persons and transactions—these, though cardinal excellences, are not all that such a history needs. No book intended for library use of reference demands more skill and taste in these respects than a School History. Besides all these merits, Harpers's Scott has the picturesque and impressive element in the groping of incidents in an unusual degree; and the illustrative engravings and maps are beyond precedent in number and worth. The book is a history, not a collection of garrulous stories—an illustrated history, not dry chronicles—and will give the pupil clear, orderly, and well-realized knowledge of the story of our country's progress. It is manifestly and much superior to many in use.

MANUAL OF READING, in Four Parts: Orthophony, Class Methods, Gestures, and Elocution. Designed for Teachers and Students. By H. L. D. POTTER. 12 mo, 432 pages, $1 40.

This work is prepared with three objects in view; completeness, that nothing be wanting to assist the teacher or student of reading; correctness, that nothing erroneous be learned; and brevity, that its price be within the means of every person desiring it.

To teach reading properly, we must posses the knowledge or avail ourselves of the assistance of the following works, viz.: a work on Calisthenics, or chest development; Orthophony, or voice-training; Elocution, as a science; Gesture or action; and Rhetoric, in order to review the selections which are read in class from time to time.

This Manual is intended to combine all the essential qualities of these books.

Part First contains Orthophonoy, or voice-training, including Calisthenics; Part Second, the most popular and practical Class Methods, both primary and advanced; Third, Gesture; and Part Fourth, Elocution, including a chapter on Rhetoric.

The following works have been consulted during its preparation: Dr. Rush on the Voide, "Bell's Anatomy of Expression," Webster's and Worcester's Dictionaries, Vanderhoff's "Art of Elocution," and Murdoch's and Russel's "Vocal Culture."

WOOD'S HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE.—The June number is just the book for the family circle! Just the dear old HOUSEHOLD magazine we used to greet so gladly. The articles are not so heavy: there are more stories; not trashy, sensational compositions, but such as bear throughout a strong influence for all that is good, and pure, and true. A noticeable feature is that there is something helpful, encouraging, comforting upon almost every page. A bright face like this is needed in every household. The children's department is fully up to its standard, and printed in much better type. As to make-up of magazine, we notice a great improvement. A Temperance story is announced hereafter, for every number. H. V. Osborne (Tenor-oon (has been recalled as editor, and assumes the entire management. Subscription price only one dollar a year. Address WOOD'S HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE, Newburgh, New York.

THE CHILD'S BOOK OF NATURE. For the Use of Families and Schools. Intended to aid Mothers and Teachers in training Children in the Observation of Nature. In Three Parts. Part I.. Plants —Part II. Animals.—Part. III. Air, Water, Heat, Light, &c.. Engraving. The Three Parts complete in 1 vol. Small 4to. Cloth, $2,00: Harper & Brothers.

A beautiful and useful work. It presents a general survey of the kingdom of natvre in a manner adapted to attract the attention of the child, and at the same time to furnish him with accurate and important scientific information. While the work is well suited as a class-book for schools, its fresh and simple style cannot fail to render it a great favorite for family reading.

CORRESPONDENCE

From our Plymouth Correspondent.

THE FARMING INTEREST—CONTEMPLATED RAIL ROAD—THE FUTURE OF PLYMOUTH—THE ADVANTAGES AND NEEDS OF THE COUNTRY—A PROMINENT CITIZEN GONE TO EUROPE.

To the Editor of the North Carolinian:

From the large amount of fertilizers used this season by our farmers, and the increase in the area of land, the cotton crop must be considerably increased over last year, all things being equal. It is pleasant to see the agricultural interest wide awake; science and systematic farming are making themselves equal to the necessity of the times; what is essentially wanting is immigration with capital, to engage in manufactories of various descriptions to perfect it. We want railroads and water facilities, to give us ready exit to our various productions, to the great Northern Emporiums.

It is rumored that a railroad is in contemplation by a private company from Hyde Park and Beaufort County, Plymouth the terminus. It would if completed add greatly to the interest of the town, as well as the section of country it would penetrate, abounding in lumber of first quality, cypress, juniper, ash, pine &c. The soil is fertile, as much so as any on the face of God's green earth, and well adapted to corn, cotton, fruits, &c.

On taking a fair view of the town of Plymouth and the business interest, it is reasonable to suppose with capital energy and intelligence combined, it is destined not long hence to be a considerable place. Several very fine stores grace the water street, and judging from the stir within, and blockade in front, and especially is this so on Saturdays, that business was all astir and profits remunerative.

Crossing the street I enquired of an old merchant doing business in a house presenting rather a dilapidated appearance, why he did not keep pace with the times and build a fine store too? He jocosely remarked, he had had no fire. This excited the mirth of all present and no one enjoyed it more than the good old man himself.

The fisheries on the Roanoke have suspended operation for the present season. The river is still flush, water rising above. The fishermen have done rather a poor business, owing to the cold weather and freshets. It is much to be regretted as the gentlemen managing them are among the most respectable of the locality, and their intelligence and energy, coupled with their urbanity and kindness, bind them alike socially and otherwise to friends and visitors.

One word to those who desire to make eastern North Carolina a permanent home; suffice is it to say, that the soil and climate is well adapted to agriculture, stock farming, fruit culture, trucking &c.

I saw yesterday a field of as fine clover and timothy, being mowed and cured, by the sheriff of the county, as you will see in any country. All that is wanting is energy and capital to make it one of the most desirable localities in this or any State. The mortuary table will compare most favorably with any section of this or any other country. Land cleared and in wood, can be purchased at fair price. The citizens are generous and social and have no peculiar prefference for settlers beyond the knowledge that he is a gentleman.

It is commonly reported that the freshet has over leaped the dams on the Roanoke farms; crops, stock, &c., are entirely anihilated by it. The loss must be great, as many have used fertilizers extensively for cotton, but are now plowing over and seeding with corn as a last result.

One of our prominent merchants is in Europe, his native home. He had a commission from the Governor to the Vienna exhibition. He is a thorough business man, and accomplished gentleman. The courtesy could not have been extended to onemore competent than Major Hornthall. He will do credit alike to himself and his adopted State.

DRAW.

Plymouth, May 30th, 1873.

Keep a Copy of Your Deeds.

To the Editor of the North Carolinian:

It is well known that lately the Court House at Plymouth was burnt, and all the papers in the Clerk's office were destroyed. It has only been a short time since the Court House in Tyrrell county was also set on fire, and all the Deeds and Records destroyed. Permit me to suggest to the land holders in this City and County that all their Deeds and Records are at a risk all the time. Last Fall an attempt was made to fire a building next to the Court House which if it had not been discovered would have entailed on the county an irreparable loss. Now the object of this article is to call attention to this state of affairs, and this raises the question to all persons: Have you a copy of the deeds of your lands? If not, you had better have a copy of your deeds and also a transcript tracing your title back, for say twenty-five years, such under the hand and seal of the county Register would cost but little, and might save you more than you suppose. Many land owners have not their title deeds. In case of a fire and the books being destroyed, a transcript tracing back your title, would be of great value. Should a fire occur in any manner and the records of the county be lost, it would cost this county a vast amount of litigation, time, money and temper. See that you have your title DEEDS. It is an old maxim, that the law protects the vigilant and the active.

PROGRESS.

Elizabeth City, June 3, 1873.

Letter from Col. Mapes.

"Albemarle House," Eliz. City N. C., May 31st, 1873.

To the Editor of the North Carolinian.

After the close of the Railroad Meeting at Camden C. H., Dr. W. A Greenleaf and myself, through the kindness of Dr. Griggs and W. N. Shaw Esq., were driven through Camden and Currituck counties as far as Shaw's corner where we remained all night. Next day, the kindness of Drs. Morgan and Shaw, we were driven to the residence of W. A. Mercer, at which place we met Corps No. 1 of our Engineers. On Wednesday, through the kindness of W. A. Mercer, Esq., we were driven over the proposed route to Norfolk, finding the same entirely satisfactory. We were pleased to see the friendly feeling evinced by the people all along the line and were agreeably surprised to find so many large plantations and so much developed country. We cannot refrain from expressing our heartfelt thanks for the hospitality received from the good people. The Doctor, after his pleasant tour, left Norfolk on Thursday evening enroute for his office in New York, for the purpose of making such arrangements in business that he may be able to return at an early time and remain with us and aid in carrying forward the work of our proposed enterprize. It is thought the Corps of Engineers will reach Norfolk by the 2nd.

OVER THIRTY YEARS AGO LYON'S KATHAIRON FOR THE HAIR was first placed in the market by Professor E. Thomas Lyon, a graduate of Princeton College. The name is derived from the Greek, "KATHAIR," signifying to cleanse, purify, rejuvenate, or restore. The favor it has received, and the popularity it has obtained, is unprecedented and incredible. It increases the GROWTH and BEAUTY of the HAIR. It is a delightful dressing. It eradicates Dandruff. It prevents the Hair from turning gray. It keeps the

Notice in Bankruptcy.
Grand Trot at Elizabeth City.

Local and Personal.

☞ Court in Currituck next week.

☞ It is proposed to establish a new Post Office at Ship Yard, Camden County.

☞ Warm weather, the "genuine article," has come at last. And the farmers welcome it.

☞ We are glad to announce that F. M. Cook has moved into his new building. More next week.

☞ There will be a railroad meeting at Currituck Court House on Monday next. Let there be a large attendance.

☞ The suggestions made by "Progress" in this issue of the NORTH CAROLINIAN are worthy of attention. Read and then act upon them.

☞ Rev. P. A. STROBEL, Agent of the American Bible Society, has arrived and will address our citizens in the M. E. Church this evening, at 8 o'clock.

☞ Our friend T. G. MUNDEN, Post Master at Currituck C. H., sends us a specimen of the rare flower known as the Dragon's Tongue. It is quite a curiosity.

☞ There will be a grand Trotting Match on the Track of our Fair Grounds on Friday of this week. It is creating considerable excitement. See advertisement.

☞ The Free Ferry from Elizabeth City across the River to Camden, is again being agitated. It is an enterprize that ought to succeed, and we believe it will.

☞ The M. E. Sabbath School Picnic on Thursday last was largely attended. The day was fine, and everything passed off pleasantly. All enjoyed themselves.

☞ The new building of BRODRICK & SMITH, on Water street, is progressing rapidly. Mr. D. S. KRAMER is the contractor. It will be one of the finest buildings in the city.

☞ J. A. GRAHAM Esq., of Courtland, N. Y., Treasurer of the "Atlantic Coast Railway Company" is now in our city, and expects to spend a few weeks in this section. He is a very pleasant gentleman and he assures us that the Company mean business.

☞ D. G. BUSH, Esq., of Bellfonte, Pa., and T. CONROW, of Philadelphia, are now in our city maturing their plans for carrying on their manufacturing enterprizes and developing their other business interests here. They are gentlemen of large capital and indomitable pierprize.

☞ A correspondent from Plymouth says that a large tumor was taken from the arm of a woman, about two miles in the country, by Dr. W. W. WARD and Mr. H. G. LEWIS, recently. The tumor was of fifteen years standing, and the patient about fifty-three years of age. The wound is rapidly healing.

☞ Those of us who have lived among railroads know something of their uses, benefits and advantages. They are the great representatives of capital, labor and enterprize—the proudest monument to progress ever reared by mortal hands. The time has come when we of this section can have a railroad if we will. It is for us to decide.

☞ Messrs WHITCOMBS have arrived with a corps of Millrights, and are at work on their new Saw Mill and Lumber Factory. They propose erecting one of the largest establishments in this section. As we announced two weeks ago, they have purchased the site recently occupied by Captain HUNTER as a ship yard. The location is a good one and they will be a valuable acquisition to our city.

☞ As the hot months are now approaching we would warn our readers to beware of mad dogs. We have no disposition at present to give a scientific account of either the origin or nature of the rabies canninia or dog-madness. It is sufficient for practical people to know that the malady both in man and beast has hitherto proved incurable. Let your dogs have plenty of fresh water during the warm weather, and then one of the causes of madness will be removed. Our City authorities has passed an ordinance requiring that all dogs found on the streets unmuzzled shall be summarily disposed of. A prudent precaution.

☞ One of the most pleasant and noblest duties of the head of a family, is to furnish its members with good reading, especially with a good newspaper. Let such go into a home and the very atmosphere of that home gradually but surely changes. The boys begin to grow ambitious, to talk about men, places, books, the past and the future. The girls begin to feel a new life opening before them in knowledge, duty and love. They see new fields of usefulness and pleasure; and so the family changes, and out from its number will grow intelligent men and women, to fill honorable places, and be useful members of society. Let the torch of intelligence be lit in every household. Let the old and young vie with each other in introducing useful topics of investigation, and in cherishing a love for reading, study and improvement.

☞ Now that the weather is growing warm, the seekers of summer resorts are naturally looking around for the most pleasant places at which to spend the hot days of the coming season. There are quite a number of most delightful resorts in this State, but among them all there is no one more desireable and pleasant than Nags Head. Extensive arrangements are being completed to accomodate a much larger number of visitors than ever before. The old "Alexina House" will again be opened, and the New Hotel especially fitted up for the comfort und convenience of boarders and guests, will be ready by the 1st of July. Our advice is to go to Nags Head.

☞ It is a fact that not over one-fourth of the lands of Eastern Carolina are cultivated. Let us have a railroad and soon there will not be an acre undeveloped. As we reflect upon the capacity of this vast area for production, when brought under the high cultivation of some of the Northern States where railroads exist—the fruit, vegetables grain, grass, and stock that will be annually produced—the commerce and manufacturing that will be developed—the growth of towns and villages—the increase of population and wealth, and all the luxuries of life as they will surely come, we are lost in utter amazement as the great prize looms up before us! Blind indeed is the man who opposes railroads.

☞ We forewarned our readers in our last issue against reports, rumors and special promises that would probably be circulated and made to distract our people on the railroad question. We repeat our warning in this. Railroads do not rain down on a people, nor are they apt to be built without local aid. Men who offer too liberally are not always the men who are prompt in redeeming their promises. The Atlantic Coast Railway Company have full and regular charter privilges from the Maryland line through Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina to Georgia. They offer to build their road by way of Elizabeth City, Hertford, and Edenton. But they do not offer or propose to do this without aid all along the line. This is reasonable; it is fair; it is business like.

☞ Mr. G. B. KING, representing the "Norfolk and Charleston Air Line Railroad Company," is in this section talking RAILROAD. Their charter calls for an air line route, via of Gatesville, Winton, Windsor, etc. The question naturally occurs: How is this to benefit Camden, Elizabeth City, Hertford or Edenton? Look on the map and see. The talk about branch roads is in our opinion simply—talk. That a corps of engineers, in the interest of this new company, is at work between South Mills and Norfolk, we are assured. But does this mean business, or is it a move on the chess board to checkmate the Atlantic Coast Railway Company whose engineers preceded them? Who can't see that even if the Air Line Company expect, now or in the near future, to build a road it is to their interest to frustrate the project of building another road near this coast country? Let the people of Camden, Pasquotank, Perquimans and Chowan counties be careful that they are not deceived into giving encouragement to a counter movement which, if successful, may leave them in the cold. We are FOR A RAILROAD, and we desire it to run through those counties by our towns. And WE ARE FOR THE PARTY THAT WILL DO THIS.

LOCAL POET-FOLIO.

Well posted—the street lamps. Not well lighted—the same. A bridal reception—the honey moon. Quite refreshing now—ice. Beer is like a flea—because hops are the principal thing in both of them. The book to which reference is most frequently made now-a-days.—the pocket-book. Very certain—the sweetest way to lose one's health is to keep drinking to other peoples. The value of Thiers—the French Republic. The only ring that should be tolerated—the wedding ring.

MEDICINAL POISONS ON THE WANE.—The patriarchs took no mercury, no bismuth, iodine, no bromides of potassium, no strychoria, no quinine Happy old gentlemen! they did not even know of the existence of those "specifics," and yet they lived until it seemed as if Death had forgotten them. Their medicines were herbs and roots. They have left this fact on record, and the world seems to be now taking note of it and returning to the first principles of medication. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the purest and most efficacious vegetable restorative of the day, is also the most popular. Thousands of persons who only a few years ago believed implicitly in all the poisons that figure in the pharmacopeia, now pronounce this palatable tonic and alternative an all-sufficient remedy for dyspepsia, nervous debility, constipation, billious complaints, headache, intermittent fevers, and all the ordinary disturbances of the Stomach, the liver, the discharging organs and the brain. The time is not far distant when most of the powerful and venomous drugs now so recklessly administered by practicioners of the "heroic" school, in case that might be easily controled by milder treatment, will be utterly discarded by all philosophical physicians. As it is the thinking public who are generally ahead of the professionals, have already put the dangerous preperation aside and adopted Hostetter's Bitters in their stead as a safe and excellent household medicine, adapted to almost every ailment except the organic and deadly contagions diseases. For more than twenty years this famous restorative and preventive has been annually strengthening its hold upon the public confidence, and it now takes the lead of every advertised medicine manufactured in this country.

Grafting.

Grafting is a very simple operation. There are various kinds practised, but the more common is cleft grafting, which every farmer can learn in half an hour, and should be able to do his own grafting. The tools required are a fine saw, a sharp knife, and a small chisel or an impliment for splitting and opening the stocks. The art consists in splitting the stock without injuring the bark, and inserting the scion, which is cut in the shape of a wedge.

Some make a shoulder on the scion, but the usual method consists in cutting that portion which is to be inserted in the shape of a wedge, leaving two buds on the stem above. It is then nicely adjusted in the stock in such a way that the bark of both scion and stock shall come exactly together. It is necessary that these parts join in order that the sap may run from one to the other. This is the main feature in the art, for, when nicely adjusted and properly waxed, there need be little danger of failure. In grafting old trees it is always advisable to remove a portion of the top, and not wait until the next year for making a finish of the tree. When the whole top is removed at once and grafted there will be danger of killing the tree. We have seen serious losses from this course. Grafting can only be successful where there is a similarity of structure between the scion and stock. We have experimented in grafting the pear on the peach, on the thorn, and mountain ash, but union is not perfect, and although they may be made to grow for a few years, they soon die out, and must be regarded as mere curiosities rather than that of any real value. Grafting, therefore, is confined within certain limits, the results being obtained with varieties of the same species. Some use a larger portion of resin. One rule is two parts of resin to one each of beeswax and tallow. The ingredients are melted together in a skillet, and the wax suffered to cool so it can be handled, and then worked over by being drawn with the hands.

We have seen recomended as very convenient the following: Canada balsam, one pound, beeswax, one poond, boiled to gether and kneaded into putty consistency. It may be kept in a kettle, to be warmed as wanted for use, and put on with a brush or spread thin on paper or cloth cut in strips for use. It is claimed to have this advantage over any other material—that it will adhere to a wet surface.

Desireable Qualities in a Pig.

Of all the desireable qualities in a pig, a vigorous appetite is of the first importance. A hog that will not eat, is of no more use than a mill that will not grind. And it is undoubtedly true, that the more a pig will eat in proportion to size, provided he may digest and assimilate it, the more profitable he will prove.

The next desireable quality is, perhaps, quietness of disposition. The blood is derived from the food, and flesh is derived from the blood. Animal force is derived from the transformation of flesh. The more of this is used in unnecessary motions, the greater the demand on the stomach, and the more food will there be required merely to sustain the vital functions—and the more frequently flesh is transformed and formed again, the tougher and less palatable it becomes.

This quality—quietness of disposition—combined with a small amount of useless parts, or offal, has been the aim of all the modern breeders. Its importance will readily be perceived if we assume that seventy-five per cent. of food is ordinarily consumed to suport the vital functions, and that the slight additional demand of only one-sixth more food is required for the extra offal parts and unnecessary activity. Such a coarse, restless animal would gain in flesh and fat, in proportion to the food consumed, only half as fast as the quiet, refined animal. To assume that a rough, coarse, savage, ill-bid mongrel hog will require only one sixth more food than a quiet, refined, well bred Berkshire, Essex, or Suffolk, is not extravagant.—Harris.

Less Land and Better Tillage.

Joseph Harris, the retired editor and successful farmer, of Rochester, N. Y., gives his ideas of improved farming, in the American Agriculturist:

My plan of improved agriculture does not necessarily imply the production of any more grain of any kind that we sell than we raise at present. I would simply raise it on fewer acres, and thus lessen the expense for seed, cultivation, harvesting, &c. I would raise thirty bushels of wheat an acre every third year. If we summer fallow and plow under clover in order to produce the thirty bushels once in three years, instead of ten bushels every year, no more produce of any kind would be raised.

But my plan does not contemplate such a result. On my own farm I seldom summer fallow, and never plow under clover. I think I can enrich the farm nearly as much by feeding the clover to animals and returning the manure to the land. The animals do not take out more than five to ten per cent of the most valuable elements of plant food from the clover. And so my plan, while it produces as much and no more grain to sell, adds greatly to the fertility of the land, and gives an increased production of beef, butter, mutton, wool, cheese and pork.

Brine for the Preservation of Butter.

To three gallons of brine strong enough to bear an egg, add a quarter of a pound of nice white sugar and one tablespoonful of saltpeter. Boil the brine, and when it is cold strain carefully. Make your butter into rolls, and wrap each separately in a clean white muslin cloth, tying up with strings. Pack a large jar full, weight the butter down, and pour over the brine until all is submerged. This brine will keep really good butter perfectly sweet and fresh for a whole year. Be careful not to put upon ice butter that you wish to keep for any length of time. In Summer, when the heat will not admit of butter being made into rolls, pack closely in small jars, and, using the same brine, allow it to cover the butter to a depth of at least four inches. This excludes the air, and answers very nearly as well as the first method suggested.

Cutting Asparagus.

Among asparagus growers the rule is, that none should be cut the first year of planting. The second year, the stronger spears may be cut at first, as they appeared above the surface, until the middle of May, when the spears should be allowed to run to seed. The third year, the bed may be cut regularly until the first week in June, when some of the weaker growth should be left, and by the 12th or or 15th cutting should ceas. From then on, the bed may be cut from the middle of March until the middle of May, not latter.

A farm of 500 acres in Pasquotank County, 6 miles from town, and one mile from the River, with good new dwelling built in modern style, barn, stables, four tenant houses scattered over the farm, fine water, &c. This farm is situated on the most public road in the County, has 300 acres cleared and balance in splendid pine, oak, cypress, maple, sweet gum, and other valuable timber. In presenting my list of lands and other properties for sale, I would say that no section of the United States offers such inducements for capitalists and emigrants, as this section of North Carolina. In longevity and healthfulness, it will compare favorably with any where: and in easy and cheap transportation of products to market, in pleasantness of climate, in the sociability of the people, in great fertility, and durability of soil, no section can equal it.

A railroad will soon be buil to Weldon, putting this place in direct communication by Rail, with the whole United States. This, together with our great fishing, farming and manufacturing interests, and certain early completion of already projected works of improvement for putting in nearer, cheaper and easier communication with the Ocean, will render this one of the most important commercial, and manufacturing points on the Southern country.

A Steam Saw and Grist Mill in the town of Nixonton 8 miles from E. City. This Mill has a fine wharf and store attached on deep navigable water, the engine is 40 horse power, and all in good order. It is one of the finest locations to be found any where for custom work, and for getting good saw logs easily and cheaply. Price $4,000 cash.

Adjoining the mill property is 40 acres of fine land on the River, with three houses, all for $1200. Near the same is a good two story dwelling and 13 acres of land for $2,000, and a good one story dwelling, with one acre of land for $300.

Also two fine farms in Pasquotank county, 10 miles from E. City, within half mile of church, school house and post office. One tract contains about 400 acres, with fair buildings and mostly cleared, and the other contains 300 acres, with good two story dwelling, large barn, and other outhouses, both are offered at $20 per acre, one third cash, balance in one and two years.

Also one other tract in Pasquotank county, containing 116 acres, within one mile of the town with fine buildings, mostly cleared and in cultivation. Price $25 per acre, one half cash, balance in 12 months.

A fine farm and fishery in same county. The farm contains 400 acres of the finest land, lies immediately on Albemarle Sound where the water is 12 miles wide, and 18 to 20 feet deep, has got buildings, and fine neighborhood. The fishery is on the farm and goes with it. It has a new seine 2,500 yards long, and all the necessary boats, buildings, &c., (which cost over $15,000 two years ago.) The fishery alone, of a good season, will make from 5 to $10,000 profit to the owner. This property is offered at forced sale for the low price of $20,000. $7,000 cash, balance on easy times.

A store at South Mills, in Camden county, 20 miles from E. City, and 20 miles from Norfolk, lying on the canal where steamers pass daily. A fine chance for merchandize. Store is large with dwelling above containing six rooms, is in first rate order, has office, kitchen, dairy, and other necessary outhouses. Goods to the amt. of $50,000 per annum can be sold here, and at large profits. A splended stand for a country retail store. Price $2,500—one third cash, balance in one and two years.

A valuable tract of land in Camden county, at South Mills, on the Dismal Swamp Canal, lying on the canal for two miles, containing over 900 acres of land—two-thirds cleared, and in a fine state of cultivation, with good buildings, &c.; balance in valuable timber. Price $12,000, one-third cash, balance in one and two years, interest from January, 1871. This is a valuable farm for corn, wheat, and vegetables, and being midway between Elizabeth City and Norfolk, and located where steamers pass by the door daily, is a desirable and cheap property.

A fine farm of 600 acres within six miles of E. City, one mile from navigable water, and the best cotton farm in the State. It is also well adapted to raising corn and wheat. This farm has a splended two-story dwelling upon it, large barn, 40 by 60 feet, a large number of outhouses, by splended trees and shrubbery, is in a strong Union neighborhood, and altogether the most desirable place in the county. A little over one-half of this land is cleared, and the balance is covered with the finest yellow pine, poplar, ash and other timber. Price $30 per acre—one-third cash, balance in one and two years with interest. Title reserved.

Sixteen houses and lots in Elizabeth City, with good dwellings, out-houses, &c. Prices and terms reasonable.

A valuable farm in Perquimans county, N. C. near navigable water. Has a fine dwelling-house with ten rooms, in splended order, with splended barns and stables—all in first rate order. The farm is very productive in corn, oats, wheat, cotton and clover. It is one of the finest farms in the State and is now in good cultivation, contains 585 acres of land, about three-fourths cleared and under cultivation. Price 10,000, one-third cash January 1, next, balance in two equal annual instalments with interest at the rate of six per cent.

A farm of 370 acres 8 miles from town by water, and 12 miles by land, is offered for sale for $10,000 in easy payments. This tract of land lies immediately on the River which is 4 miles wide and washes the farm its whole length on one side, and a branch of the River one mile wide, binds it on one end. The land is well adapted to raising corn, wheat, cotton, oats, peas, &c., lies high and dry, and is susceptible of the highest improvement. Fronting and looking over, as it does, two large sheets of navigable water, where steamers and sailing vessels are constantly passing, carrying freight and passengers to all parts of the country, its location and surroundings, are of the most fascinating and desirable character. There is a fishery on it ready for working a seine 2,500 yards long, and which commands a portion of both streams of water, and can be made immensely profitable. The price charged is low, and the purchase a very desirable one. The buildings consist of a good two-story dwelling and out-houses.

A desirable house and lot in the town of Elizabeth City on the corner of two principal streets, the principal one, and situated in the best business locality in the town. The lot contains about two acres of land, and the buildings consist of a fair dwelling three stories high, containing eight rooms, all in good order, another two story building with four rooms and pantries, dairy, smokehouses, stables, &c. The dwelling has a good cellar under it. There is room on the front lot to erect two good stores, and they would occupy the best stand in the town for merchandize.

A Farm of 200 acres within one mile of Elizabeth City, with good two story dwelling, large barn and stables, and all necessary outhouses, orchard of fine fruit trees, and a large number of ornamental trees and shrubbery around dwelling. MISCELLANEOUS.

BANKRUPTCY.

THE FIFTY PER CENT. CLAUSE.

As there seem is to be a misunderstanding in regard to the effect of the provision of the Bankrupt Act, commonly called the 50 per cent. clause, we publish h the following extract from the Act:

The second clause of the thirty-third section as amended by the Act of July 7, 1868, provides "that no discharge shall be granted to a debtor whose assets shall not be equal to fifty per cent um of the claims proved against his estate upon which he shall be liable as the prin upon unless the assent of writing of a majority in number and value of his creditors to shall have become liable as principal deb who shall have proved their claims, filed case at or be fore the time of hearing application for discharge.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled—that the provi of the second clause of the thirty-third section of said act as amended by the first section of act in amendment thereof, approved June 1868, shall not apply to those debts in the bankrupt seeks a discharge which were tracted prior to January 1st, 1869.

The true meaning is not that a must be able to pay fifty per cent debts, before he can obtain a many believe; but that his estate, in the hands of his assignee, at the time of the must be equal, to fifty per cent. of the debts.

1. That he owes as principal;
2. That have been proved against in bankruptcy; and
3. That he has contracted since the 1st of December, 1868.

Or, if a majority in number and value of those who have proved their debts, which the bankrupt is indebted as principal, have contracted subsequent to December 1st, 1868, sent in writing to the discharge; such bankrupt may be discharged forever from all his debts.

If a debtor, owing three thousand dollars principal, twenty-five hundred of which indebtedness was contracted prior to January 1, 1869, and five hundred subsequent to that time, files his petition in bankruptcy, and his creditors prove against him, and there are no assets in the hands of the assignee, the petitioner will be entitled to a discharge; but it will be a bar only to the debts contracted prior to January 1, 1869.—If no creditors prove, the discharge will be good against all debts contracted before or after January 1, 1869.

The practical effect in bankruptcy cases generally is, that creditors fail to prove their debts, finding it ordinarily unprofitable. They have had, in a large majority of instances, heretofore the trouble and expense of making proofs, without receiving any return. The 50 per cent. bugbear, therefore when viewed in the light of the law and common-sense, disappears.

EXEMPTIONS IN BANKRUPTCY.

The exemptions under the 14th section of Bankrupt Act are as follows:

1. Household and Kitchen furniture to amount not exceeding $500.00
2. Wearing apparel of Bankrupt and family.
3. Uniform, &c., if he has been a soldier in the United States Army.
4. Personal property of the value of $500 to be selected by the Bankrupt.
5. A Homestead and the dwelling and buildings used therewith, not exceeding in value the sum of $1000.00; or in lieu there of, if in any city, town or village not exceeding in value the sum of $1000.000.
6. The reversionary interest in the Homestead lands.

In laying off the Exemptions Districts, the Assignees are ordered to assign and abide by; any assignment of a homestead which has been made by a sheriff under State laws; or which has been assigned upon the application of a debtor in accordance with the laws of North Carolina. Where no assignment of homestead has been made, the assignee will proceed to set apart such lands as homestead, and make the other exemptions according to the rules of the bankrupt Court.

The report of such exemptions when made by the assignee can be excepted to by the bankrupt or by any creditor, within twenty days after the allotment of such exempt property.

EFFECT OF THE DISCHARGE IN BANKRUPTCY UPON JUDGMENT

It is the opinion of many of our best lawyers that the discharge in bankru
